NEWS BRIEFS

CAMPUS

Hillel member receives scholarship

Wendy Nadler, business major at Valley College, has been awarded the Francis Kraye Memorial Scholarship for the 1988-89 academic year.

The scholarship is given to an outstanding student who is also active in the Hillel Foundation, a Jewish organization that serves Pierce and Valley Colleges.

The recipient will receive $500 per semester and is required to work five hours per week in the Hillel office.

The Francis Kraye Memorial Scholarship was created in 1981 as a memorial to "a woman who dedicated herself to the field of office administration," said Hillel.

DISTRICT

District trims cost of new offices by $6 million

Construction plans for the new district offices were modified by the Board of Trustees, reducing the expense from $15 million to $9 million.

The board approved changes that will eliminate the need for an additional parking structure that would have been built on the City College campus. The new plans call for a building of three stories, instead of the original two-story office.

Board adopts retirement incentive

A retirement incentive for certificated district employees was adopted by the Board of Trustees Nov. 30, and will be granted provided at least 100 certificated employees retire by March 31, 1989.

The proposed monthly retirement allowance would be granted to the employee for life and would be determined by applying a formula to the employee's salary.

Retirees must have been with the district as a certificated employee for five years to be eligible for the incentive.

Colleges honor retired professors

Buildings at Los Angeles City and Harbor Colleges were renamed in honor of two former professors by the Board of Trustees at its Nov. 30 meeting.

At City, Clauson Hall, a music building, will honor Leslie P. Clauson, professor of music and music department chairman at City from 1931 to 1972.

The Men's Gym at Harbor is now the Yancy Gym in honor of Selwyn W. Yancy, who served as athletic director and chairman of the physical education department from 1949 to 1974.

District 'personnel changes' expected

Chancellor Phelps tells Valley faculty Fallo submitted letter of resignation

By SUSAN L. WOOD
News Editor
and CATHERINE PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

Chancellor Donald Phelps told members of the American Federation of Teachers Valley College Faculty Guild, he had received a letter of resignation from Thomas Fallo, vice chancellor of business services for the Los Angeles Community College District.

Fallo, who has been on a leave of absence since Nov. 15, according to Victor Hanson, director of business and ancillary operations, was not able to be reached for comment.

When asked if he had a letter of resignation from Fallo, Phelps said, "I have no comment on that. I have done a clear review and within the next few weeks, I will recommend personnel changes," he said. But, he added, "You will not find anyone being fired by me."

Norm Schneider, director of the office of communications for the LACCD, said, "I will neither confirm or deny it," when asked about the alleged resignation letter.

Sue Carleo, president of the faculty senate, was present at the meeting between Phelps and faculty members.

"He said that he had a letter of resignation but he hasn't done anything with it," said Carleo.

Board of Trustee member Arthur

Bronson said Fallo will be returning to work for the district and has not resigned. He said earlier this week, "There is absolutely no validity to that statement. I will bet $100 of my own money to $1 of [yours] Fallo has not submitted a letter."

Sylvia Lubow, vice president of the AFT Valley College faculty guild, said, "He [Phelps] said the vice chancellor had submitted his resignation and it was on his desk. There is no question, in my mind, he [Fallo] is no longer acting as vice chancellor of the district."

Hank Klein, chairman of the art department and a member of the AFT executive committee, remembered the meeting with Phelps. "From what he said, my understanding is Fallo has submitted a letter but it has not yet been accepted."

"The room was full when he said it; we had to drag in extra chairs for

Trustee says Valley lacks funds

*Bronson confused
over budget report*

By CATHERINE PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

Trustee Arthur Bronson said Valley College is underfunded and he approved distribution of $2.5 million in October without realizing Valley has received the lowest share of all augmentations made since January.

"The presentation [from the budget office] to the board did not show the realities," said Bronson, who spoke to the faculty Senate Thursday. "Until this morning it was a mystery to me."

Bronson called for a different distribution of district funds to the nine Los Angeles Community Colleges.

Valley has received $411,000 of $8.8 million which has been allocated since January, when the planning budget for the '88-'89 fiscal year was released.

"This is absurd," said Philip Clarke, professor of mathematics. "We've received less than Mission College."

"Aren't students at Valley worth as much as students on other campuses?" said Maryamber Villa, professor of history.

Valley's reputation as "the jewel in the crown of the district" has hurt it, said Bronson.

"We've had years of underfunding because the board feels Valley can take care of itself," said Pat Blakeslee, professor of psychology. "Colleges that don't, get the money."

Board of Trustees member Arthur Bronson speaks to the faculty senate about the size of Valley's budget.

Calling Valley a "liberal-arts oriented institution," Bronson praised Valley's high transfer rate, but said more money is given to programs emphasizing technology.

Larry Serot, director of the district budget office, said an advisory board of all presidents of the nine LACCD colleges met before approval of the October augmentation, and there were only two college presidents who opposed the way in which the money was to be distributed.

"It [the underfunding] isn't because Mary Lee [president of Valley] didn't fight against it," said Bronson.

Lee argues Valley's case by stressing Valley receives the least money per Weekly Student Contact Hour (WSCH), said Serot.

As a result of a presentation from Lee in August on the eve of the final budget's adoption, Board President Harold Garvin proposed changes which were rejected by the board. Garvin agreed more money should go to the two colleges whose enrollment increased in 1987-88: Valley and Mission.

At that meeting, the presidents of the colleges were against changing the final budget. They also said presidents should not lobby the board, according to Serot.

Mary Lee reportedly applies for Pierce job

By SUSAN L. WOOD
News Editor

The president of Valley College is in the process of submitting an application for the position of president of Los Angeles Pierce College in Woodland Hills, according to Sam Mayo, assistant dean of admissions, and Sue Carleo, president of the faculty senate.

Dr. Mary Lee would not comment as to whether she is submitting an application. "She feels it's inappropriate to comment at this time," said her secretary, Helen Bialeck.

While no official printed notice has been released by Lee, she has made unofficial announcements to various members of the faculty.

"She told me just recently about applying," said Carleo. "She's an excellent president and an energetic person. I wish her the best of luck."

Many faculty members are waiting for an announcement from Lee stating her intentions.

Jack Sterk, professor of speech communication, said: "We've all heard the rumor of her applying to Pierce for the position. If she wants to apply to Pierce... then she ought to apply. The only thing that will bother me, if she doesn't get the position, will be her commitment to Valley."

Pierce seeks revision in distribution policy

By KATHI JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Pierce College has asked the Los Angeles Community College District to revise Pierce's policies concerning the distribution of literature on campus. This was in response to the recent on-campus run-ins Pierce's administration has had with the religious group Jews for Jesus.

There were 17 arrests of Jews for Jesus members at Pierce College from Nov. 15-28.

Avi Snyder, 37, Los Angeles director of Jews for Jesus, has been taken into custody three times for trespassing on the college campus.

"We were arrested for doing nothing wrong while exercising our First Amendment rights," said Snyder.

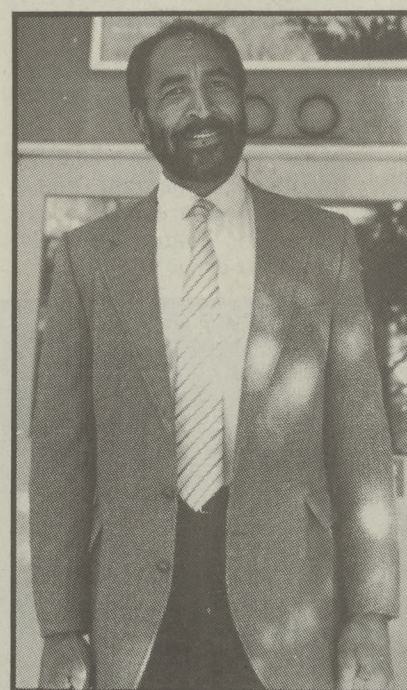

The campus police began arresting members of the group when they refused to apply for a permit which would require them to disseminate their literature from a designated booth on campus, said Snyder.

Jerry Brockway, a campus police officer, said: "They refused to use a booth. They were stopping students on their way to class, and it was interfering with the students' trying to get from one class to another."

According to Art Hernandez, dean of student activities at Pierce, the issuance of permits is necessary because it lets the administration know who the groups are and where they are on campus.

"I think that is a ruse," said Snyder. "I have no problem letting people know who we are or where we are. That is not what the permit

Billy Reed

Soon to be senior director of personnel in district offices.

Reed promoted to district office position

By BETH KATZEN
Staff Writer

Billy Reed, assistant dean of administrative services, will be leaving Valley College after Dec. 21 to become senior director of personnel at the Los Angeles Community College District office.

Reed said he was just offered the position and it will most likely be a temporary one.

"A few other people are involved and if they move up, they will keep their positions permanently," he said. "If not, I'll be back."

At the present time, Reed's new job duties have not been shored up, but he believes they will include district-wide contract negotiations, arbitration, and personnel grievances and dismissals.

Reed, a veteran of 20 years, said he will miss Valley if the position becomes permanent. He added he owes it to himself to take the new position.

"It's a promotion," said Reed. "You can't turn too many promotions down because they don't come by too often."

However, Reed said: "I love the campus. I would miss the camaraderie, the students and the staff, and that's a fact."

As Valley's assistant dean of administrative services, Reed is in charge of contracts, leasing, maintenance, communications, reprographics, men's and women's athletics and overseeing the master calendar.

Reed worked his way up the ranks at Valley. He started as a physical education teacher, then became a coach, a counselor, and later dean of administrative services.

Hunger doesn't end— it's a year-round struggle

People who are hungry are not always the bums who live on Skid Row. They may be the family of six who are crammed in a small one-room apartment or the family who is living out of their station wagon at the neighborhood park.

The signs aren't always obvious, but they are there. If you look real hard, you will see them.

These people should not have to beg for food because they are short on money and can't make ends meet. Many have pride and dignity, and won't ask for help.

They need our help desperately. In this great season of giving, it is up to us to insure they have food to put on their table.

One place which can help these people is right in our backyard. It's the North Hollywood Interfaith Food Pantry. Located in a quiet middle-class neighborhood, the Pantry can become intrusive when there are a lot of families waiting in line to get food.

Having opened on March 13, '83, in a Sunday School room at the First Christian Church of North Hollywood, the Pantry was founded by five women from different religious congregations.

It was organized as a non-sectarian, non-profit, volunteer agency under the sponsorship of the San Fernando Valley Interfaith Council. Its purpose is to provide emergency food for those in need in the North Hollywood and Sun Valley areas.

Currently, there are ten congregations actively involved in the work of the Interfaith Food Pantry.

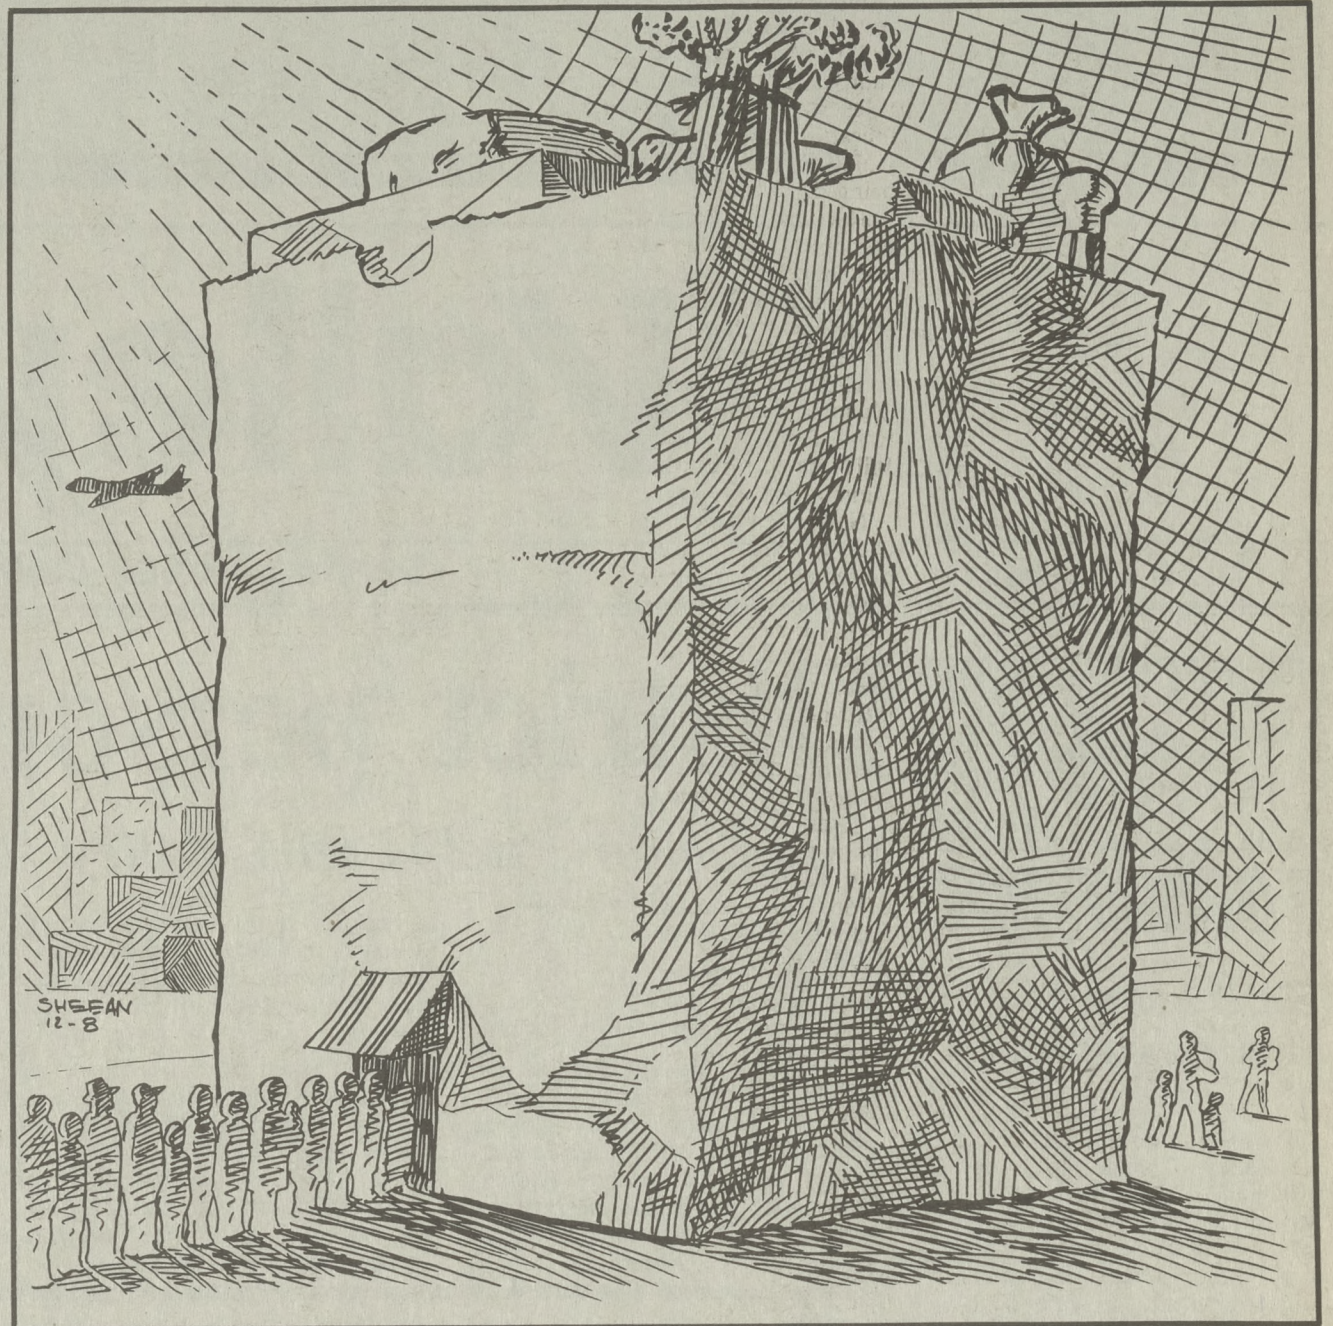

Because they are only open two days a week, they cannot help as many people as they would like. On an average Monday they help approximately 100 families and on a Friday the number could rise to as many as 120-130 families.

They are always in need of donations, whether it be great or small.

The following supplies are needed on a continuous basis: baby foods, canned fruit/meat or tuna/vegetables, can openers, cereals, diapers, disposable razors, pasta, tomato sauce, peanut butter, powdered milk, soap, and personal items.

Bins are set up at the site for those people who would like to donate newspapers and aluminum cans for recycling. Paper and plastic grocery bags are also needed to distribute the food.

The Pantry operates out of two small rooms at the First Christian Church, located at 4387 Troost Ave., in North Hollywood. Mondays and Fridays from 10:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m. They are open to receive donations, or they can be sent to: North Hollywood Interfaith Food Pantry, 5000 Colfax Ave., North Hollywood.

Helmetless hardheads hold their lives hostage

Motorcyclists band together to fight proposed laws— while their numbers diminish

By CHRIS STEWART
Staff Writer

Gary Busey was a big advocate in the fight against legislation which would force motorcycle riders to wear helmets. He now is in critical condition following an accident he had on Sunday. He was not wearing a helmet when he slid, head first, into a curb in the Culver City area.

Recently a law went into effect which stated all car drivers must wear their seatbelts. This is a great law and, hopefully, it will help save many lives. Why isn't there a similar law requiring cyclists to wear helmets?

Motorcycle riders banded together to fight any bill before legislation which would require them to wear helmets. They are not even required to wear shoes or eye protection devices while driving a motorcycle.

Many people will agree with me that riding motorcycles is a blast. I have been riding for nearly a decade. But, unfortunately, it is a dangerous form of transportation. Often it can be the sole means of transportation for some people.

The fact that few, if any, steps have been taken to enhance the safety of motorcyclists is ironic. The reason being motorcycles are much more dangerous than cars.

Driving a car to work is a much better way to ensure getting there in one piece. In fact, the chance of death while driving a car is one in 6,000. The percentage is an astonishing one in 50 for motorcyclists.

Choosing not to wear a helmet while riding isn't a reflection of how "cool" you are. It's a reflection of how dumb you are. Trying to look "cool" is a sad excuse for not wearing protective headgear.

I enjoy the line, "I can't afford a helmet." True, they can be expensive—$100 and up. But a violent spill while not wearing a helmet can cost more in medical bills than the total price of a helmet.

A few years back, a bare-headed biker explained to me he doesn't wear helmets because they are too heavy and could break his neck if he were to fall. I didn't know if he was serious or not. A well-padded helmet only weighs about five pounds.

Besides the obvious protection of the head, when fitted with an eye protector it also completely protects the rider's eyes from wind, rain, bugs and anything else which might impair the driver's vision.

There would undoubtedly be less deaths if motorcyclists were required to strap on helmets. Perhaps incentives should be offered to riders in an effort to persuade them to wear helmets.

For instance, a reduction in insurance rates in return for proof of helmet usage would definitely persuade money-conscious riders to wear helmets.

There should have been a law years ago requiring riders to don full body, hand and head protection like in many, if not most, European countries.

Realistically, that probably will never happen. Hopefully, in the near future at least, helmets will be worn by all riders, and many lives will be spared.

Nurse's fight against vivisection supported by many students

Editor,

I loved the article on "Nurse says 'no' to vivisection." Suzanne Matthews has done her homework.

I am a victim of animal research. I am paralyzed and in a wheelchair because of a vaccine that was tested on animals and taken from the pus of sick animals.

So what good did it do me! Animal research must be stopped before it destroys us all.

Read Slaughter of the Innocent, by Hans Ruesch and Vaccination Condemned by Eleanor McBean.

Sheri King
Disabled student

Editor,

In response to the article on Thursday, Nov. 17, "Nurse says 'no' to vivisection." HURRAH!

We are finally educating the public to the disasters caused by animal research, and the public is finally responding.

I would advise everyone to read The Naked Empress, The Great Medical Play, by Hans Ruesch. If you really want a glimpse of the racket going on in the medical empire, this book will do it.

Suzanne Matthews is very well informed. We should all stop by her table more often!

Neil Arnold
Pre-med student

Editor,

I really enjoyed the article, "Nurse says 'no' to vivisection". This is definitely a human health problem.

Being a nursing student here at Valley College, I question many of the practices in medicine.

It appears that to have a healthy body one must eat the right foods, preferably a vegetarian diet, exercise, ect. Not pollute the body with poisonous drugs!

Ron Behm
Student

This is very disallusioning, especially since these drugs were all tested on animals who react differently to drugs anyway. So the human body is the real guinea pig! Who are we really fooling?

Nancy Long
Nursing student

Editor,

The article "Nurse says 'no' to vivisection" really impressed me. I've always heard one side of the issue. And I am so shocked at what I have learned by talking to Ms. Matthews, who is well informed on this issue.

It doesn't make sense because animals are different and like Suzanne says, "They have to be given diseases." Look at all the billions of dollars wasted and all the human lives lost. And all the animal lives wasted for nothing!

Linda Brownville
Student

Editor,

In regard to last weeks article, "Nurse says 'no' to vivisection," I'd like to express a word of gratitude to Suzanne Matthews for the great job she has done by opening up to students the world we were never meant to see.

The underground world of a hell that has been going on long enough. I never realized the uselessness of using animals in research and how they have contributed to the massive damage to human health.

I learned this from weekly visits to her table outside the bookstore and by viewing the film Hidden Crimes, which she showed monthly.

I have also read Slaughter of the Innocent, which is in the Valley College library. I commend her on her outstanding efforts.

Editor,

I was appalled to read the letter to the Star written by Ms. Sandra K. Mendenhall in your Nov. 17 edition. I would like to rebut this letter.

First of all, I am not a member of the Student Union, nor am I on the Executive Council or a member of the Senate. Since I am not one of the "attacked", I feel that I can answer this letter from an unbiased vantage point.

Ms. Mendenhall accuses the Student Union of many things. Being familiar with the office, I would like to address them point by point.

Regarding her not being able to obtain a book loan, there are many scholarships and loans available on campus. None of them are advertised. The serious student goes to the Financial Aid office and asks!

There is limited space on flyers. They usually clearly state "For more information go to..." As for a time limit, wouldn't you expect book loans to be available at the beginning of the semester when you need to buy your books?

She states, "I have heard rumors that the officers of the ASU received their book loans first." Only one ASU officer received a loan at all, and then, they were the last person to receive one, not the first!

Regarding the legal advice, she is basically correct. The attorney is on campus every other Wednesday evening and is available for 15 minute consultations. Considering the number of our members and the cost of an attorney, we feel that is the most that we can do.

"The real kicker is the discount coupon book." The copy to be printed for the books was turned into Reprographics on campus on Aug. 30. We submitted a "needed by" date of September 30, giving them a full month to produce the work.

The pages were not delivered until Oct. 28. And then, they were not bound (which we had paid for!). We had to hire extra help to collate and bind them to get them out to you. They have been available, in our offices, since the day we received them.

"I have been to their offices many times to speak to them..." Not one person in this office has ever heard from Ms. Mendenhall. She has not even left a message for anyone, EVER!

"Their attitude about the fact that no one was given money for book loans..." She had better check her facts if she does not want a slander suit filed against her! We gave out $2,000 in book loans this semester! To reiterate, only one was given to an officer of the union.

Ms. Mendenhall should remember that these students volunteer all of the time that they spend in these offices. It is very difficult to keep up with a class load and the responsibilities of Student Union leadership. Perhaps she did speak to someone who said it was not their department. We have many positions on the Executive Council. She should have left a message.

I would recommend that if a student has a problem with the Union, to speak to the president of that union. I, myself, work here each Tuesday and Thursday and am available for questions or whatever is needed. I truly believe that these union officials are doing an excellent job with what they are given to work with.

If Ms. Mendenhall is so dissatisfied with the Union, why not take the time to become an officer herself? I served on the Executive Council when I was a student here. Those who have the greatest apathy also, frequently have the most complaints.

states—it requires approval for what we say and limits us to stand by a booth where people have to approach us before we can begin talking to them."

Snyder said the campus authorities have the right to police groups under reasonable time and place considerations such as class room interruptions or doorway blocking.

"The conditions of the permit requirements were not reasonable and constitutional time, place and manner considerations," he said. And the Jews for Jesus organization filed a request for a restraining order on the campus police to stop the arrests.

On Friday, Dec. 2, Jay Sekulow, representing the ministry group, and Warren Kinsler, attorney for the Los Angeles Community College District, held a meeting with Judge James Ideman to discuss the group's request.

As a result of the meeting the administration will ask the district to revise its policies concerning permit requirements, Hernandez said. The ruling on the restraining order request was postponed until March 27.

The religious group will now be allowed to pass out literature in the manner they have been doing all along without the fear of being arrested, according to Hernandez.

J.J. Wolf, captain of Valley's campus police, said the district's rules state that freely passing out literature on a college campus is a violation only if school activity is being disrupted.

Jews for Jesus have passed out pamphlets at Valley, but they were not found in violation of the rules, according to Wolf. There have been no arrests of the group's members at Valley.

There is no booth restriction on organizations applying for a permit to hand out literature at Valley, said Billy Reed, assistant dean of administrative services at Valley.

Norm Schneider, spokesman for the district, said permit requirements vary between campuses.

On Tuesday, Nov. 29, after the last members of Jews for Jesus to be arrested at Pierce on Nov. 27 were released, the group's attorney was informed by the city attorney's office the LACCD had no intention of ever prosecuting the alleged trespassers, Snyder said.

"I am not speaking belligerently about the law—it just saddens me that we had to endure 17 arrests before it was finally acknowledged that we could do what we were doing," Snyder said.

The first hearing in the multiple arrest case is set for Friday, Dec. 9. Snyder said he hopes, in light of Friday's meeting, that the trespassing charges will be dropped.

Bronson...

The need to stabilize other colleges in the district caused abandonment of an allocation formula which was more favorable to colleges with higher enrollment. The current assignment ensures that enrollment loss will not prevent schools from receiving at least what they had the previous year.

"The transient population at the inner city colleges, in contrast to the white, suburban population at Valley and Pierce, causes fluctuating enrollment," said Serot. "We can't take money away from these schools [if their enrollment drops] because a lot of the money goes toward salaries."

Serot said axing employees to save money in colleges with reduced enrollment was an unpopular idea.

"When we tried to fire employees before," said Serot, "we ended up with a new chancellor and new board members."

Recruitment of high school students is another expense inner city colleges, more than suburban San Fernando Valley colleges, must face, said Serot.

"If this is true, why does Pierce get more than Valley?" said Clarke. "Pierce is in a more affluent area than Valley."

Bronson also gave his support for the decentralization of the district. He said the new district office will be an "Educational Services Center" and called the old 8-story office building on Vermont a "fiefdom," which had little access.

Bronson said he would like each college to have "stand-alone capabilities," including its own computer for data processing.

Mayo said: "I have mixed emotions about her applying for the position. I hate to lose her; she is an exceptionally-talented individual and, more importantly, she is a great visionary of what the colleges can do."

"Truly, I am pleased and I hope she gets the position. I wish her all the good fortune in the world...she deserves it," said Mayo.

Marie Martin, a former president of Valley College, will be chairwoman, selected by the Board of Trustees, of the Selection Committee. The committee will select three applications for the board to study before voting on the new president.

They are looking to name the new president of Pierce by July 1989.

The deadline for submitting applications is Monday, Dec. 12. Norm Schneider, director of the office of communications services for the LACCD, was unable to give a count of submitted applications.

Lee transferred to Valley in 1981 from Pierce College after holding the positions of acting dean of instruction and dean of college development.

Valley Star, Crown win 33 awards in competitions at Rio Hondo College

A staff of 14 journalism students and 2 advisers from the Valley Star attended the Journalism Association of Community Colleges-Southern Section last Saturday at Rio Hondo College and came away with 33 awards.

Susan L. Wood, Star Assoc. Opinion Editor and current News Editor, took two first places in the feature story category in both mail-in and on-the-spot.

Douglas Gintz, former Star Editor in Chief and current graphic designer, won a third place in mail-in opinion column/humor; a fifth in editorial cartoon and honorable mention in front page layout on-the-spot.

Catherine Gunn received first place news writing and an honorable mention editing both on-the-spot.

Other mail in awards went to: Newspaper—sports news—Michael Itagaki, fourth place and David Frost, fifth place; news writ-

The Star also won third place in General Excellence, two second places in front page layout and headline writing and a fourth place best-use-of-photos.

Crown Magazine, Blanca Adajian Editor in Chief, mail-in awards went to: Human interest writing two honorable mentions, Nancy Weeden and Holly Pratt. Humor article—Don Richards, fourth place; Jessica Raines-Lenz, honorable mention. Magazine illustration—Theresa Ranson, fourth place. Crown also took a first in layout and a third in General Excellence.

Newspaper on-the-spot awards also went to: Critical review—Dean Hotta, second place. Hotta took a sixth place in Sports story as well. News story—Kathi Johnson, honorable mention. Feature photo—Carlos Diaz, second place; Monty Brinton, fourth place. Bring-in photo—Walter Hernandez, honorable mention.

The competition, entered by both Valley Star and Crown, consists of two sections. The mail-in includes material going back approximately one year and is mailed in ahead of time for judging. On-the-spot is judged the same day as competition. Awards for both are given at the end of the day.

all the people. I would estimate there were 40 to 50 people there," said Klein.

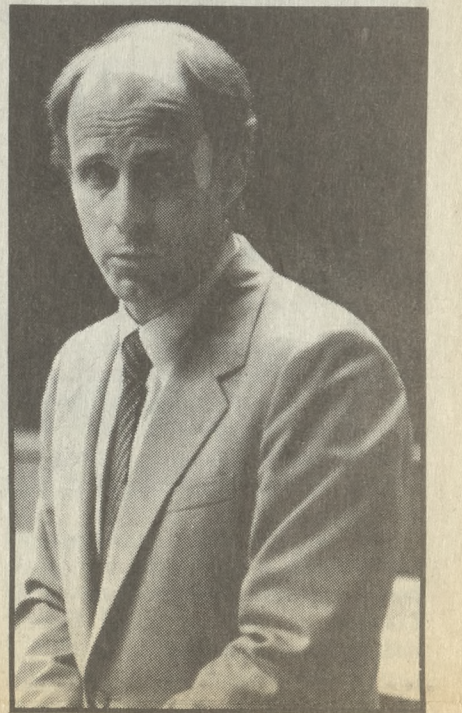

Dr. Shannon Stack, a faculty senator and charter member of the AFT, said, "He indicated Fallo had given him a brief letter of resignation. He had not indicated whether he has accepted it, but he said it was on his desk," said Stack.

Harold Garvin, president of the Board of Trustees, said Wednesday, "The chancellor has now been here [with the LACCD] long enough that he feels he's got a pretty good handle on things...In the next few days, and perhaps the next few weeks, he's going to make a few significant changes in personnel."

Trustee Wallace Albertson reiterated Garvin's statement on changes. "He [Phelps] plans to make some sort of announcement at the meeting on the 21st [December] about personnel changes," she said.

"But as far as a letter of resignation, I'm not saying there's no validity, but I'm saying there's no resignation. Tom Fallo has not resigned and has no intention of resigning," said Albertson.

Fallo has been working for the district since 1972 when his first position was of a staff assistant for Fiscal Services. He became vice chancellor in 1981.

Valley's 'Apple' promises appeal

By CATHERINE PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

Windfall Apples is an affecting play with characters anyone who has ever lived in a family will recognize.

An audience in the '80s can observe an earlier era, the '40s, shown with more honesty than was allowed to be seen in movies or plays written during that period.

The set for Windfall Apples, this season's final play by the theater arts department, recreates a homey living room in 1942. The Glenn Miller Orchestra, the Andrews Sisters' Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy of Company B and other classic World War II music is heard throughout the play.

The war infiltrated the daily lives of families and young men about to be shipped out, their conversation sprinkled with talk of rationing. America was biting the bullet at home and preparing boys to shoot them overseas.

Peter Parkin, director of Windfall Apples, was five in 1942. He realized Roma Gerth's play with help from his own memories of the era.

When the play opens it is near Armistice Day, and Wally Eisenhart (Rick Davidson), the father in the story, shows his patriotism by displaying Old Glory. He shows his infidelity by a conspiratorial telephone call with Margie, the floozy with whom he has a "swell time."

June (Solange Lemelin), the daughter, hears every word; her naive desire is to bring her parents back together.

Windfall Apples takes its name from the apples that fall in the autumn with each gust of wind. Their insides decay into a mushy goo, no longer fecund.

It serves as an ugly metaphor for the Eisenharts' marriage. It could also apply to Lorraine, the mother (Robin Stallings), who feels dead at 40 years because of a recent hysterectomy.

Lorraine is full of biblical justification for her miserable existence, including her spartan spending. "Pride goes before a fall," she tells June as the girl tries to get her mother to splurge on a $3.44 dress.

Solange Lemelin and Christy Marin converse.

AARON COHEN / Valley Star

When June convinces her parents to go away together, her wilder best friend, Danielle (Christy Marin), invites two soldiers (John Gourdeaux and Scott Conte) over before they leave for overseas.

The dogfaces attempt to blunt their anxiety with dancing and drinking beer, much as today's teens do when their parents are not around.

We see the pairing of one awkward friend with a grown-up-acting best friend. June is uneasy to lose her virginity, while Danielle lost hers soldiers ago.

June also must live with the hurtful reminders from her father that he always wanted a boy to boast about.

When the son and the marriage died in infancy, Wally retreated from his asexual, depressed wife and the family.

However, this play has no villains. Wally doesn't feel wanted or needed. The strongest bond is between June and her mother. June knows her mother is slightly unbalanced, but still June cares for her deeply.

Windfall Apples is a bargain at the $5 admission price, for there are few places such as the 88-seat Horseshoe Theater where, within a few feet of your seat, intimate glimpses of people's lives can be had.

The play will be shown Dec. 8, 9, 10, 15, 16 and 17 at 8 p.m.

Ayuda to benefit hurricane victims

By AL TOMLINSON
Staff Writer

Ayuda, (Spanish for help), will aid victims of the October hurricane that tore up Nicaragua, leaving more than 300,000 homeless. The Ayuda benefit concert is coming to Valley College Thursday, Dec. 15, at 7 p.m.

The concert, held in Monarch Hall, boasts a line-up of top local bands, including Mary's Danish and Lockup, as well as Latin bands Alienz, Long John and his Okanise, and members from Sabia. A group of comedians called Latins Anonymous will also perform.

The event is a political statement as well. The patio area of Monarch Hall will feature representatives from several organizations, including Americas 2001, Amnesty International, Office of the Americas and Students Against Apartheid.

This event's uniqueness lies in the organization that is pulling it all together. Ayudamos, Inc. is made up of students from a political science class taught by Professor Farrell Broslawsky, who collected blankets and food from his classes to send to Nicaragua. Mark Torres, one of the students, decided to do more.

Torres got together with Juan Morillo, a fellow student and the Associated Student Union Commissioner of Chicano Studies, and the two started Ayudamos, Inc. A total of 28 students from the class pitched in to bring together bands, publicity and the support of the campus administration.

Ayudamos is asking for donations of $12 to $15, which could mean more than $8000 in aid to the Nicaraguan homeless. In order to sell out the event, the L.A. Weekly, local radio and TV stations are donating advertising for the show.

Contrary to previous advertisements, there is a chance that singer-songwriter Jackson Browne will not appear at the benefit. Browne's schedule allows very little time for a proper rehearsal, according to sources.

Costumer's career zips into high gear

By E.C. ARCHIBEQUE
Staff Writer

"I've been sewing since I was five; I started with needlepoint. By the time I was 12, I was making all my own clothes. I've always liked dressing up," said Judy Ashton, LAVC's new head of costuming in the theater arts department.

A native of California, Ashton's personality and enthusiasm are reflected in her lifestyle. She has been a Las Vegas show girl, a touring dancer in such places as Guam and Japan and a costumer for motion pictures.

She is also a member of SCA, the Society for Creative Anachronisms. "We're the people who like to dress up and pretend it's the Middle Ages," said Ashton.

"I belong to the [SCA] subgroup of the Gypsies," said Ashton. "I'm kind of the ramrod of the group."

When an earlier foot injury that ended her dance career, she began pursuing a career in costuming. A friend of Ashton's told her about an ad for a costume teacher at LAVC.

"I looked at the ad and thought, 'That's me,'" said Ashton. "I love theater, I like to work with people, and I sew faster than anyone I know." After several months of interviews she was hired although she has no formal training.

"I study a lot," said Ashton. "I think one of the reasons I was hired was because I could tell them how to do research for costumes."

Ashton is zealous about the importance of costumes in a production. "A good costume can't make a bad actor good, but it can convince a good actor to be great," she said.

Ashton designed the costumes for the recent LAVC production of Harvey. In May LAVC's theater arts department will present Sweet Charity, and Ashton will design all the costumes for the production.

"I'm going to do the costumes heavy into the '60s. I'm going to concentrate more on the high fashion decoration of the era than the hippie fashion," said Ashton.

A lot of the costumes used for productions are essentially "recycled from existing costumes," said Ashton. "Harvey only required five new costumes to be made, which took three weeks."

Content to be working at Valley, Ashton has no plans to go anywhere else. "I have no desire to work in the movies," she said. "I like working with the students and I like to teach."

Smart. Smarter. Smartest.

AST Premium 286. Industry critics have called the AST Premium 286 the best-built, best-looking and best-performing 286-based personal computer on the market.

Technically, it's a marvel of engineering. With zero wait-state operation and 10 MHz speed, the AST Premium 286 will race you through next semester's term papers and research projects.

Smartness aside, there's another characteristic of the AST Premium 286 you'll appreciate—common sense. That's because it combines power with tremendous value. And, unlike the numerous cheap PC compatibles on the market, the AST Premium 286 is capable of running both today's and tomorrow's applications. So you won't outgrow it the day after you graduate.

AST Premium 386. If your needs are more complex, and you're not satisfied with less than the best, the AST Premium 386 is your computer of choice.

If your major is engineering or design, the 20 MHz, 32-bit architecture of the AST Premium 386 will get you through the most complicated of CAD programs with time to spare. And built-in compatibility with MS-DOS, OS 2 and UNIX gives you freedom of choice in applications. That means that you can run virtually any software off the shelf while giving you the power to develop your own.

Value, performance, smarts. That's the trademark of AST Premium personal computers.

$200 Cash Back!

I have just purchased an AST Premium 286 or 386 personal computer. I have submitted the appropriate identification and invoice. Please send me $200 cash back.

Upsetting season for Monarchs

Football finishes third place in division

By ERIC BARAD
Assoc. Sports Editor

Santa Monica is famous for beaches, girls, surfers and football. Football?

Well, maybe not but the Monarchs will never forget Nov. 12.

The Monarchs were 6-1 at the time, coming off two straight victories in which they outscored their opponents (West L.A. and Pierce) by a combined score of 127-25.

Santa Monica was 4-3, and controlled their own destiny.

It was the perfect scenario. The Monarchs beat Santa Monica for a bowl bid and then played Bakerfield for the division title.

However, before you could say "touchdown," Santa Monica scored seven of them enroute to a 48-7 upset.

Unfortunately for the Monarchs their next opponent would be Bakerfield, the third ranked team in the country.

It was a do-or-die situation. A win would mean Western States Bowl; a loss would mean adios amigos.

Bakersfield wouldn't take talk of an upset. They embarrassed their opponent with a 44-6 victory.

Valley finished the season in third place in the Southern division and fourth in the Western State Conference.

Freshman kicker Jim Harper was awarded the Monarchs' highest postseason honor: he was voted All-American Honorable Mention.

Harper, offensive lineman Chad Pascua, wide receiver Brandy Harris and running back LaMonte Simmons made First-Team Offense.

Defensive lineman Greg Wilson, linebacker Larry Muir, defensive back Daryle Smith and punter Edward Bunn made First-Team Defense.

Running back Roman Carter finished second in the Western States Conference in touchdowns with 13 TD's.

Quarterback Todd Studer finished second in individual passing with 111 completions and 1,394 yards.

Men's basketball, 3-3

By JERRY SAWINSKI
Staff Writer

The Monarch basketball team went to the Antelope Valley Tournament looking for a little respect, and in the process, may have found quite a measure of it.

Valley opened up the tournament with victories over Porterville and Fort Irwin, before losing in overtime to eventual tournament champion Golden West and then to Riverside.

The Monarchs are 3-3 in preconference competition.

In their 72-59 win over Porterville, the Monarchs started out slowly—trailing by 15 points early in the first period—before coming back on the shooting of freshman guard Joey Manliguis who led Valley with 26 points.

Valley's next game, against Fort Irwin, was a tough close game with the Monarchs prevailing, 98-94.

Sophomore Oral Elrington paced the Monarchs with 35 points and 13 rebounds. Tory Stephens added 25 points for Valley.

In their game against much heralded Golden West, the Monarchs, despite shooting only 46 percent from the field (including a miserable 6 for 21 from 3-point range) played the champs to a tie before succumbing in overtime, 107-94. Elrington led Valley with 30 points to go with 10 rebounds and 4 steals.

If this game was won anywhere, it was at the free-throw line where Golden West shot 42 free throws compared to 13 for Valley.

Valley finished the tournament with an 84-71 loss to Riverside. Stephens led the Monarchs with 23 points. Sophomore guard Andre Harrel added 19 points.

Coach Jim Stephens was overall pleased with his team's performance, "I thought we played well enough to win all four games, but it was a good learning experience for our guys," Stephens said.

The conference schedule is still a month away and Stephens feels the team needs work on a lot of things if they are going to make a run at a playoff bid. "We're still an undisciplined team," Stephens said, "we really need to improve on moving the ball around and setting up our offense. We're rushing our shots instead of setting for the easy basket."

Monarchs play 'heads up,' win 86-65

The Lady Monarchs experienced their best second half of the season last Friday, scoring 48 points toward an 86-65 come-from-behind victory over the Citrus Owls at Citrus College.

Valley improved to 6-2 in preconference competition and Citrus fell to 3-3.

Ruth Aguilar scored 24 points for Valley with 13 of those points coming in the second half.

"The game was the best game

Aguilar has played this year," said Coach Doug Michelson.

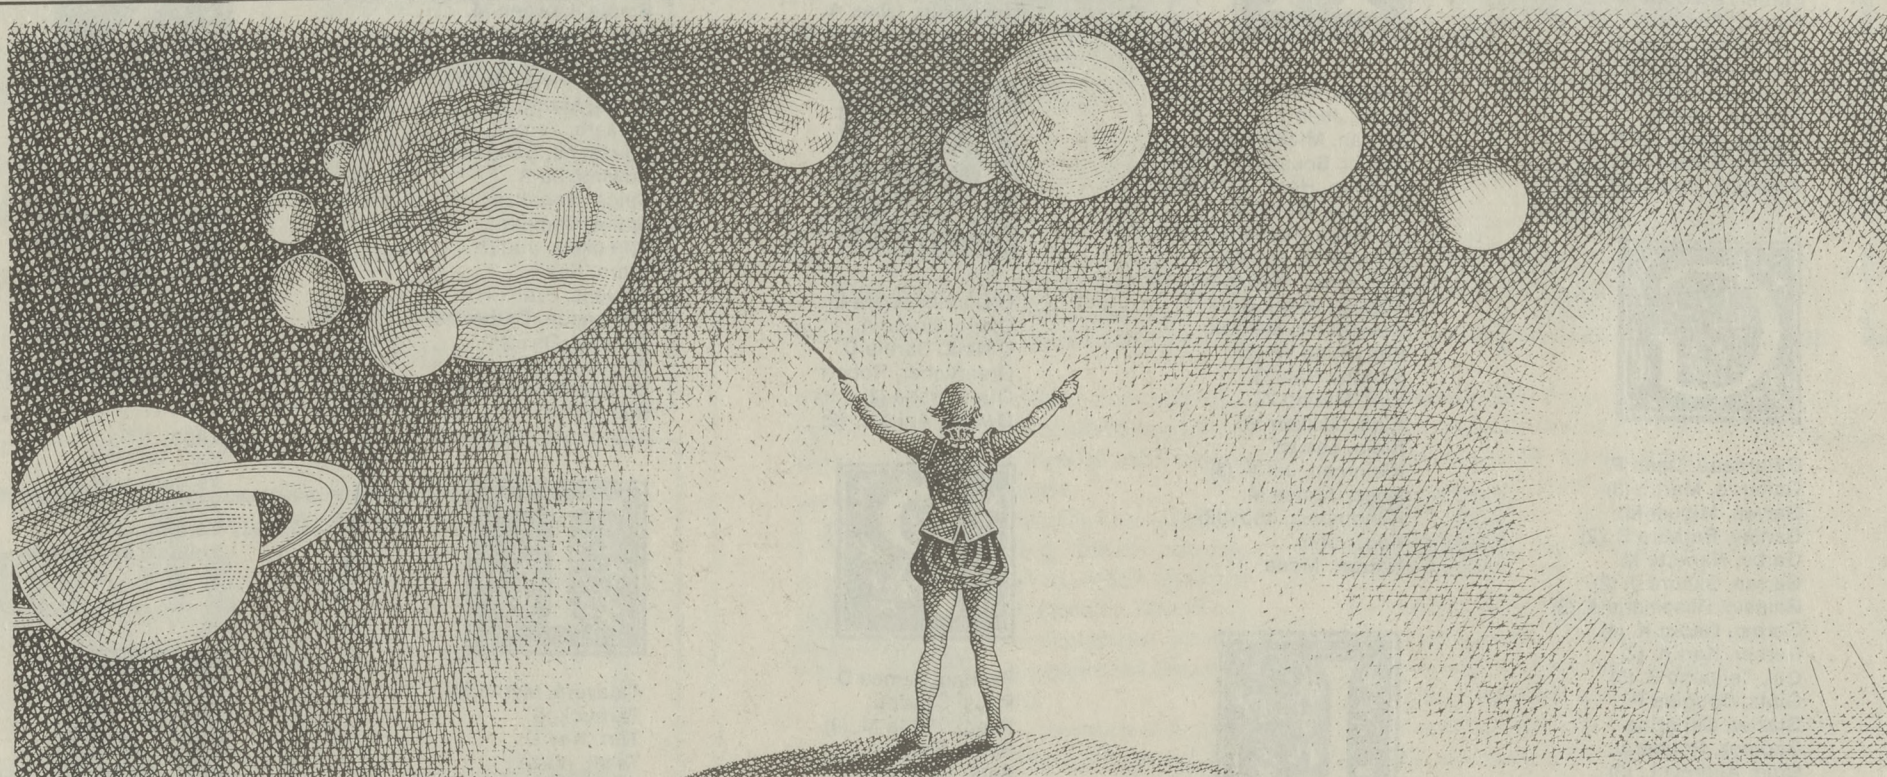

Michelson continued by saying, "many adjustments were made during the second half, but it was a great effort of all 14 players."

Although Valley made no rebounds during the first half, in which they were trailing 39-38, "they played 'heads up' ball during the second half," according to Michelson.

It took Galileo 16 years to master the universe. You have one night.

It seems unfair. The genius had all that time. While you have a few short hours to learn your sun spots from your satellites before the dreaded astronomy exam.

On the other hand, Vivarin gives you the definite advantage. It helps keep you awake and mentally alert for hours. Safely and conveniently. So even when the subject matter's dull, your mind will stay razor sharp.

If Galileo had used Vivarin, maybe he could have mastered the solar system faster, too.
